About the Seminar

Today's law firms are experiencing a new breed of lawyers — tech-savvy, mobile, and with new expectations of how information should be available, delivered and managed. The proliferation of mobile devices puts pressure on firms to find new ways of working and using technology to improve productivity and client service.

But as cloud technology gains fast traction, legal organisations still remain cautious over data sovereignty and data privacy. While there is no sure-fire way of knowing whether staff members are emailing sensitive corporate documents via their personal accounts or storing them in Dropbox for mobile access, firms are at a greater risk of confidential data leakage if this issue is unaddressed.

This seminar seeks to challenge the misconceptions and highlight the benefits of cloud and mobility solutions in bringing innovation and improvements in the way law firms deliver legal services to their clients. The seminar also highlights the changing nature of how people interact with technology and the opportunities and challenges it presents to legal practices. In addition, it provides expert tips on how to best mitigate risks.

The speakers for this seminar are:

Mr Edwin Lee, an expert in secure information sharing and mobility solutions, will conduct a demo session to highlight the beauty of tapping into cloud technology to control and track sensitive corporate assets, while providing granular, flexible and powerful security for your firm's IT environment.

Mr Hoi Wai Khin, a veteran advisor in the field of Information Security and Business Continuity, will draw upon past data loss incidents to share tips and strategies on how to mitigate the possibility of confidential data leaks and avoid serious reputational damage and potential penalties arising from non-compliance with legal requirements.

This will be followed by a panel discussion involving our senior practitioner and expert speakers, in which they will discuss and provide their perspectives on how law firms can tap into this technology, what can be done to enable them to streamline the way law firms' function and the challenges that lawyers may face ahead. Our senior practitioner will also share her cloud adoption experiences that will provide a practical insight into this relatively new technology area.

Learning Objectives

At the end of this session, participants of the seminar will understand:

- The impact on the legal practice as it becomes increasingly digital
- The common security challenges in working with sensitive information or within the constraints of information protected by the attorney-client privilege
- Data protection best practices and strategies to protect the firm and its clients from potential data breach
- The benefits of adopting the right cloud solution for secure file sharing to improve collaboration, scalability and security, while reducing IT expenses
- The advantages of leveraging on enterprise mobility solutions for seamless, secure access to all the required resources and applications on any device anywhere, anytime
- To look at the three most common share enterprise valuation methods with a particular focus on the discounted cash flow method.
